

Shrewsbury Flaxmill Maltings reopens after eight-year renovation

18/11/2022

The historic Shrewsbury Flaxmill Maltings - the 'grandparent of skyscrapers' - has opened its doors again following 35 years of closure thanks to £20.7million National Lottery funding.

Four listed buildings on site are now fully restored: the Smithy, Stables, Main Mill and Kiln. Their redevelopment has been led by Historic England and The Friends of Shrewsbury Flaxmill.

The Main Mill and Kiln have now opened for the first time as a visitor attraction, café and workspace.

Turning flax into linen thread

The new attraction, 'The Mill', will tell the story of a pioneering flax mill, purpose-built in an area of England with a long history of textile production.

Its crucial role in the industrial revolution will be shared in an interactive experience spread across three spaces on the ground floor.

The new exhibition 'The Mill'. Credit: Historic England

Championing environmental sustainability

The restoration project is a flagship for sustainability, demonstrating how historic buildings can be reused and how technology can help heritage sites tackle the climate crisis.

The renovation has made use of:

- a ground-source heat pump
- natural lighting and ventilation
- old materials – tiles from the site's earliest days as a flax mill have been incorporated into window ledges

'Grandparent' of skyscrapers

"We are thrilled to have supported the redevelopment of Shrewsbury Flaxmill Maltings with a grant of £20.7m, made possible thanks to National Lottery players."

Robyn Llewellyn, Director, England, Midlands & East at The National Lottery Heritage Fund

Built in 1797, the Grade I listed Main Mill is the world's first multi-storey, cast iron-framed building. This innovation by architect Charles Bage is now described as the forerunner or 'grandparent' to the modern skyscraper, paving the way for buildings such as Manhattan's Empire State Building.

Following the site's beginnings as a flax mill and major local employer from 1797 to 1886, it was repurposed into a modern maltings. From 1897 to 1987 it converted grain into malt for brewing, whisky making and vinegar production. The site was also used as a temporary army barracks during the Second World War.

19th century image of the site after it had been adapted for use as a maltings. Credit: Shropshire Archives

Thanks to National Lottery players

Robyn Llewellyn, Director of England, Midlands & East at The National Lottery Heritage Fund said: “We are thrilled to have supported the redevelopment of Shrewsbury Flaxmill Maltings with a grant of £20.7m, made possible thanks to National Lottery players.

“I would also like to thank Historic England and The Friends of Flaxmill Maltings for their tireless efforts in bringing this important heritage site back to life, ensuring its trailblazing history is preserved for all to celebrate.”

More exciting projects in the Midlands & East

To keep up-to-date with news of our funding in the Midlands & East:

- sign up to our newsletter and select the ‘Midlands & East’ box
- keep an eye on our dedicated Midlands & East web page
- follow us on Twitter

Efallai y bydd gennych chi ddiddordeb hefyd mewn ...

Newyddion

Cathedrals: bringing the UK's ancient monuments to life

How National Lottery funding is revitalising visitors' experiences of cathedrals – inside, outside and online.

04/07/2022

Corby Pole Fair 1982. Credit: Glyn Dobbs

Newyddion

Corby – a town with a centuries-old royal tradition

The famous Corby Pole Fair – which takes place only once every 20 years – has received National Lottery funding for an extra special Queen’s Jubilee event.

01/06/2022

Engagement Manager Dawn Bainbridge (centre) on the job – visiting a jazz archive project

Blogiau

Luton: A vibrant, diverse town with a rich heritage identity

Our Engagement Manager for England, Midlands & East, Dawn Bainbridge, tells us about our work and investment into Luton's heritage – one of our 13 Areas of Focus.

03/05/2022