

Festive cheer for Scottish Churches

Seven distinguished Scottish churches and a cathedral are starting their Christmas celebrations early knowing that their buildings are going to be repaired.

Over £1.5million has been awarded to them through the Grants for Places of Worship programme, a partnership between HLF and Historic Environment Scotland. As well as making the churches wind and watertight, the funding will be used to delve into their history and share it with the community and visitors through events, publications and digital media. Many will also train volunteers to give guided tours.

From a church modelled on the hull of a boat, to a spire used as a navigational fix, to the first cathedral to be built in the UK after the reformation, the seven places of worship to benefit from the funding are:

- Shettleston New Parish Church Glasgow
- St Michael's Kirk, Inveresk
- Paisley Central Methodist Hall
- St Mungo's Parish Church, Alloa
- St Anne's Church, Dunbar
- St Ninian's Cathedral, Perth
- St Mary's Parish Church, Kirkintilloch
- St Ninian's Episcopal Church, Glen Urquhart

Lucy Casot, Head of HLF Scotland, explains: "Scotland's amazing array of churches provide a focus for many community activities particularly at this time of year. We are delighted that, working in partnership with Historic Environment Scotland, we are able to help these congregations secure the future of their buildings. Not only will they be wind and watertight but activities and events will reach out to new generations encouraging many more through their doors."

Frazer Gibson, Project Officer for Historic Environment Scotland, added: "Throughout the centuries, Scottish society has been intrinsically linked with religion, with the local place of worship often forming the focal point of communities. As a result, a great deal of resource has been expended throughout those years to create some of the country's most important and carefully constructed buildings. Nowadays many continue to serve as a hub for the communities they serve, but they can also be appreciated for their aesthetic value and historical importance. Places of worship are undoubtedly a vital part of Scotland's built heritage, and we are very happy to be able to contribute towards their repair and restoration, along with our partners in HLF."
